There are executives. And then there are those who have an Executive Presence. Those with presence own the room they are in and their presence is often palpable even when they are not present physically.

A common theme at Talent Reviews and Succession Planning is this "absence of the presence"; the only thing coming in the way of the ones laden with all other techno-functional capabilities.

While partly a result of neglecting the fundamentals of connecting with others, the root cause is almost always Impostor syndrome and a misplaced sense of humility coming in the way of sunshining oneself.

uiUx addresses this with a two-dimensional approach, of both internal clarity and external impact. Authentic self-expression is primed through exploration in a safe simulated environment followed by testing in the real world with Coaching support. Charisma and influence flow as natural outcomes.
