Workplaces should be professional. And co-workers should be logical, reasonable and consistent. The reality is, it's not so. In an ever-growingly complex and time-crunched world, the triggers are flying with ever more intensity and frequency. A simple interaction that could yield results in minutes, escalates into a full-blown argument and spirals into distrust and stress.

Alternately, real communication is suppressed behind the masks of procedures and propriety. It festers and leads to avoidance of communication until past-urgent. Quite evidently, with such counter-productive interactions, the loss of efficiencies is enormous.

Emotional intelligence is what can turn this around. [EQ]² demystifies abstract concepts, yet shares cutting-edge body of knowledge with you. It brings you directly applicable and immediately usable insights, exercises and practices.

[EQ]² changes you in a way that leaves you more productive and empowered. And you are the source of spreading the goodness of it all as a leader and a multiplier.
